IV Writing.

For me, inspiration is when something drives you to some kind of accomplishment, when you feel a surge of new strength and just get up and do it. Such an inspiration for me is Leonardo da Vinci.

Why does he inspire me? This man is a genius, a universal man and just a talented person. Leonardo sought to change the world, to make the life mankind easier.

He invented things that were clearly ahead of their time for example, he came up with the ideas of an airplane and a helicopter. He made many drawings and studied the flight mechanism of birds and bats. In addition to observations, he also conducted experiments, but they were all unsuccessful. It just doesn't fit in my head that in 15th-16th century a person could fly. Also, he is credited with such inventions as a parachute, a car, a crossbow, a searchlight, a catapult and even a robot. According to some reports, this invention was even brought to life. The Machine Man, built by Leonardo, allegedly served as a toy for the wealthy Duke of Milan, Sforza. The idea to create a mechanical likeness of a person came to Leonardo after a deep study of anatomy
